Reported Cases of Syphilis Drop; Gonorrhea Up in '69

Reported incidence of syphilis dropped in Broome County last year, according to a spokesman.

Dr. McRae said five cases of early latent syphilis were reported last year, compared with 10 in 1968.

On the other hand, he said the county had reported 41 cases of gonorrhea last year, compared with 34 in 1968.

DR. McRAE said venereal disease statistics always are incomplete because many cases go unreported.

He explained that latent cases of syphilis are those in which no symptoms have yet appeared, neither the signs of the primary nor the rash of the secondary stage.

This is a fairly common in syphilis, which symptoms of the primary stage are a chancre, the central nervous system, often with crippling of hand results.

DR. McRAE said latent cases of syphilis, even if not reported to treatment.

The health commissioner recently said he favors a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Francis J. Boland, Jr., of Oneida in the State Legislature that would permit physicians to examine and treat minors with only the minor consent.

MR. BOLAND said many young people avoid medical examination or treatment because it requires parental consent and they are afraid their parents will find out they have been exposed to venereal disease.

Broome County may have as many as 20,000 venereal disease patients, according to a spokesman.

Mr. Misavage said he is going to have the air traffic controllers' slowdown by at least a week in Washington, D.C., next week.
